Handicap Computer Update

Quite a few people have asked about the construction on #4 and #16 and how it affects their handicap.

The course has been re-rated based on the construction and the computer has also been adjusted to allow for this.

Enter scores as before and the adjustments are made to give you the correct handicap.

For equitable stroke control, #16 is a Par 4.

Weekend Tee-Offs

We would ask for your understanding in the shop about our inability to please everyone with Saturday and Sunday tee times.

We are receiving 40 to 50 requests for 8:00 to 9:00 and as you can see, it is impossible to fit everyone in. The groups are rotated as much as possible so that you will get close to your time on given days. However, this takes three to four weeks to happen.

Doing the draw creates a lot of anguish in the shop as we want to keep everyone happy, but it is an impossible task. The situation usually eases a bit as we approach July. If you can play another time, please try to do so. Afternoon ballots are very rare.

Prince George Golf & Curling Club Directors' Responsibilities 1994-95

This year's executive, and the individual directors' responsibilities, are as follows:

Betty-June Gair	President
Don Grantham	Secretary-Treasurer
Carol Tichelman	House Director
John Heaslip	Special Projects
Greg Ames	Curling Director
Ron Phillips	Green Director
Ron Magrath	Golf Director

From the Superintendent

With the warmer spring weather, the grass is greening up nicely now. With the healthier grass come some maintenance practices which create undesirable playing conditions.

One such practice is aeration. A good soil profile and a healthy root system area a necessity to a healthy grass cover. With the large amount of traffic over greens and tees, compacting of these areas occurs. Compaction reduces water and nutrients movement downward through the soil which affects the root system. The weakened root system and grass plant is more susceptible to disease, heat and drought stress. Aeration opens up the soil, allowing for better air and water movement within the soil which creates a healthy root system and stronger grass plant. Aeration also removes thatch (dead and decaying plant and animal material) which restricts water and nutrient movement as well.

Top-dressing is a necessity with aeration to fill the aeration holes and adding desirable material to the root zone. This creates avenues for water and nutrient movement thus creating a better soil profile and healthier root system.

The water injection aeration system (hydroject) is great for temporary relief of compaction. However, it does not change the soil profile or reduce thatch, meaning core aeration is a necessity on poorly constructed greens, or greens with excessive thatch.

The thatch layer at our course is minimal and with the past top-dressing programs, the soil structure of the older greens has been greatly improved. Thus I will not be core aerating the greens this spring. I will increase the amount of hydrojecting, verticutting (mechanical thatch removal) and very light top-dressing.

I will maintain a watch on the greens throughout the summer to see if a fall aeration will be necessary this year.

During aeration processes, the flag will be moved to a temporary green to allow for the job to be completed more quickly. Your patience is appreciated.

Course Superintendent

Greens Design

With the construction of #4 and #16 complete, with sod and seed in place, the design committee thought the membership would like to know a little about how the committee comes up with the design for each new hole.

The design committee consists of Tom Cole, Laurie Pierce, Stan Wettlaufer, Hugh Patterson, and Murray Kutyn. As a committee, we are charged with developing the design for each new green on the golf course.

There are many factors which influence our design. The golfer should be provided with a challenge, playability, aesthetics and a healthy putting surface. The first step to achieve all this comes from your greens committee. They decide which green or greens is next to be rebuilt the following year. Our first step is to survey the total area to be developed. This includes actual physical measurements, shape and slope. We also take photos of the green area and from the fairway where the approach shot will be hit, for reference. We then meet, usually in December, to the development of our design.

To create a green which satisfies the needs of the game of golf, we must be concerned with size, shape, slope, contours, maintenance, and aesthetics. These aspects of green design are influenced by the distance of the approach shot, the slope in the landing area of the fairway, and the angle from which the approach shot is hit. We also give consideration to the surrounding area as well in an effort to integrate the design into the overall landscape to maintain balance and flow over the entire area. We also discuss bunker placement traffic, maintenance problems and location of cart paths. Usually after several meetings, we have come up with a design we hope will meet all design criteria. This is then taken to the greens committee for approval. Once we have that, we meet again to build the model you see at the wine and cheese party each spring.

We are enthused over the job at hand and want the golf course to be the best it can be, for all members of all handicaps. Enjoy your golf season.

Murray Kutyn
Construction Superintendent

Ornamental Tree Program

Over the winter and spring people have continued to purchase trees for our ornamental tree program. Our grounds crew will be planting the new trees very soon and the office is updating the list of people who have contributed to the on-going beautification of our course.

The purchasers list along with an updated plant list will be published in next month's Georgian.

Special Projects

Planning and design is on-going for the new kitchen addition still scheduled for early fall 1995.

The stock pile of earth east of the parking lot is in preparation for the new driving range. The earth will be used to build a berm between the driving range and the entrance road for noise reduction and to deter errant balls from going onto the roadway.

Day Ladies Golf

Golfing is in full swing and the Day Ladies have enjoyed four great Tuesdays. We have had two fun events, an "Irons Only" day and a Scotch 4 Ball.

The Dorothy Olive Franklin Memorial Tournament, held on May 9 was very successful and $62 was raised for Junior Golf. The qualifying round for the Spotless Dry Cleaners Match Play was completed and Rose Biddle was the Low Net Medalist. Thank-you to Fran Heighington, Spotless Dry Cleaners, for her continued sponsorship of this Match play event.

There's lots of golf to come; hope to see you all out on the course.

Heather Correale
Day Ladies Captain

Margaret Morgan (1901 - 1994)

We say good-bye to a founding member of the Prince George Golf & Curling Club.

Margaret started to play the old course on the river bank near Fort George Park in the 30's. She held all the offices in the Club at one time and several years ago, she was made an honorary member. She put up a trophy many years ago and we still play the Margaret Morgan, now supported by Chris Cooper and Lynda Kencarde.

Margaret continued to play into her late 80's. She was a real nice lady and a true sports woman.

Evening Ladies Golf Report

On behalf of the Evening Ladies, I would like to thank our April/May sponsors: CIBC, 3rd Avenue, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Highland Beauty Salon, R.J. Cooper Construction, United Carpet and Deloitte & Touche for helping to make our Tuesday evening events a wonderful success.

We also have several businesses who have kindly donated gift certificates which we will draw for throughout the season. They are:

Wendy's - Pat Bell
Dairy Queen - Larry Allen
Cariboo Restaurant - John Goulas
Keg Restaurant - Sal Gupta
B.C. Telephone - Kathy Mears
Boston Pizza - Cindy O'Neilly
Mr. G #9 Car Wash - Bill Sherba

Again, thank you for your support.

I would like to remind all ladies that the Gerry Carmichael Memorial Tournament is being held on June 18. It would be wonderful to see all Day and Evening Ladies supporting this event.
